A special plate for blind and visually impaired people is a tool used to enable them to read information on a sign or provide them with specific instructions in a public facility.

It contains a writing in the Braille system. It is a blind people's dotted writing system, read with the fingers.

A sign for the blind may contain information about the name of the facility, room number, floor markings, directions or other important information that a blind person needs to orient themselves in space.

Signs for the blind are often placed at entrance doors, elevators, restrooms, stairs, or other important points in a building. They aim to facilitate communication and ensure the accessibility of space for blind people.

The presented board is made of durable, black material.

Braille writing is made of white, milky balls. This is an interesting aesthetic alternative to traditional steel balls. Changing the color does not affect their functionality, of course.

Large, clear and contrasting white inscriptions on a black background not only look good, but can also be an additional aid for mildly visually impaired people.

Dimensions of the plate: 15x10cm

Minimum purchase: 10 pieces
